The Cube Personality Test

The Questions

It’s important to remember the first thing that comes to your mind when you answer each question and remember not to take this test too seriously, just a bit of fun that lets you dive into your mind a little. Either write down or sketch out your answers.

So here we go, are you ready?

Think of a desert, as vast as you can imagine. There is a cube in this desert...do you see it?
1. Describe the cube. What’s it made of? Can you see through it? How big is it? Where exactly is it? Is it buried in the sand or is it sitting on top? Is it floating? Is the cube moving?
2. As you’re observing the cube, you begin to notice that there’s also a ladder in the desert. What’s the ladder made of? How long is it? Is it an old ladder? Where is it in relation to the cube?
3. Now imagine that a horse has appeared in the desert. Is the horse moving at all? If so, in which direction? What does it look like?
4. Now try and imagine flowers in your desert. How many of them can you see? Where are they in relation to the other objects in the desert?
5. A Thunderstorm begins. Can you see it? What kind of storm is it? Is the wind strong? Is the storm far away or close to you? Does it affect the horse, the flowers, the cube or the ladder in any way?

Go to www.TheEdTalks.com to hear the Podcast
The Cube Personality Test

The Answers

Ok so what does it all mean? There are lots of varied interpretations so remember it’s just a bit of fun to open up your mind to start thinking about things.

The cube represents you.
The material the cube is made out of represents your feelings, and the kind of front you put up. If it's transparent, your inner world and attitude to life are still forming into their correct shape and you tend to present your feelings honestly. If it's opaque or solid, you're a fully-formed individual who's hard to manipulate and you keep parts of yourself hidden from most of the world. The size of the cube represents your ego. If the cube you’ve envisioned is large, you’re likely a very confident person. If it’s small, you’re most likely shy and modest. If the cube is dug into the ground or covered with sand, it means you are a planner that thinks far into the future. If the cube is sitting on top of the sand, that means you’re a pragmatic person who knows exactly what you want from life. A cube that is spinning or moving signifies that you are someone who thinks out of the box and avoids convention and stereotypes. A cube that's hanging in the air indicates that you're an artistic personality with great imagination.

The ladder represents your friends.
If you've envisioned the ladder touching the cube, this means you’re very connected to your friends and rely on them for support. If the ladder is detached, this means you’re more self-assured and prefer to be independent. If the ladder is below the cube, your friends see you as an authority figure. If the cube is on the same level, you and your friends are equals. If the ladder is above the cube, this means you see your friends as authority figures in your life. If the ladder is short, this means you prefer keeping a small circle of friends. If it’s a long ladder, you’re an extrovert with many friends and acquaintances. A new ladder indicates that your friendship mostly consists of people you got to know relatively recently. If it’s old, your friends are largely those you’ve known for quite some time.

Go to www.TheEdTalks.com to hear the Podcast
The Cube Personality Test

The Answers Continued

The horse is your ideal partner.
The look of your imaginary horse may say much about what you crave to see in your partner. If the horse you imagined is a strong workhorse, that means your ideal partner is hardworking and reliable and that you like to feel protected and safe in romantic relationships. If you've imagined a more delicate horse, that means your ideal partner is likely someone who takes pride in his or her appearance and enjoys being pampered. Did you visualise a beautiful Pegasus (horse with wings) or a unicorn? It means you value outward gloss, and if you thought of some kind of imaginary creature, you're likely dreaming about someone you'll never have, or a celebrity. Is the horse tied up, or is he running free? This embodies the level of control you feel you have (and need), romantically-speaking. Does your horse rub its neck at the cube or nibbles at its corner? You and your beloved are probably very close and have warm relations. If the horse is far away from the cube or moving in the opposite direction, this means you're distant from your present partner or far from attaining your ideal one.

The flowers represent your children.
The number of flowers you imagined represent the number of children you would like to have. If the flowers are close to the cube, it means you desire a close relationship with your kids - or already have one. If the flowers are far from the cube, this means you do not value having a close relationship with your kids. The color and vitality of your flowers may tell you something about your kids' health and prosperity.

The thunderstorm represents your fears.
A thunderstorm symbolises threat and your anxiety about yourself and your surroundings. It indicates the current state of your mind and how you perceive the probability of risk in your life. Is the storm you imagined far off in the distance? That means you're living life with little worry. If it's close to the cube but not affecting it, you're able to confront the difficulties you face and easily defeat them. If the storm is directly over the cube, your troubles are overwhelming you right now.